Fuel Oil From Seaweed.
Seaweed offers a prolific source of fuel oil when present supplies are exhausted, according to an English scientist, who has obtained seven gallons from a ton of vegetable matter.

Preparedness.
"Goodness, Maria, why are you hiding all the music so carefully?" "Well, John, the Puffers are calling on us to-night, and you know Mrs. Puffer never plays without music."

SHORT WAY WITH DIVORCE

New Jersey Justice Gave Little Encouragement to Applicants Who Appeared in His Court.

Prof. E. G. Conklin of Princeton was condemning divorce.

"I wish that all our authorities treated divorce like the Jersey justice," he said.

"A man and his wife appeared before a Jersey justice, and the man said they'd like to get a divorce.

"What's the law on this p'int, George?" the justice whispered to his clerk.

"Ye can't do it, judge," the clerk answered. "Divorce ain't in yer jurisdiction."

"The husband, not understanding the nature of this whispered colloquy, took a stocking full of coin out of his pocket, and dangled it before the justice, and said:

"I'll pay ye big money for this here divorce, judge—big money."

The justice frowned.

"Look-a-here," he said, "ye knowed afore ye come here that twa'n't in my jurisdiction to separate husband and wife, and yet ye not only take up my time with yer talk, but ye try to bribe with money. How much ye got in that there gray sock, anyway?"

"Eight dollars, yer honor," stammered the frightened man.

"Wall, all right, then," said the justice in a mollified tone. "I'll let ye off with a five-dollar fine for bribery and a three-dollar fine for takin' up my time with a case what my jurisdiction is out of."

HEN DISTINCTLY ON THE JOB

Takes One Look at Chicken-Feed Sign and Immediately Proceeds to Lay an Egg.

Fenrose Bushnell, residing in the New Hartford road, drove to Winsted, and stopped at the Manchester feed mill, in Main street, with an order for chicken feed.

While the order was being put up a cackling hen attracted the attention of those in the mill, including Mr. Bushnell, and, looking out, they saw a hen and newly laid egg on the seat of the Bushnell wagon.

Unknown to Mr. Bushnell, the hen sitting beneath the wagon seat had ridden to town with him, and when Dobbin stopped in front of a large sign advertising a certain kind of chicken feed, the hen hopped upon the wagon seat, and, facing the sign, "Will Make Hens Lay," deposited its testimonial as to the value of the feed advertised.—Winsted (Conn.) Dispatch, New York Herald.

NO QUIET PLACE.

In one of the all-night restaurants in the tenderloin recently four men were eating a nice large meal, breakfast, if they had just got up, or supper if they were on the way to bed; the hour would fit either condition in that neighborhood. Suddenly a fight started. One of the customers bounced a sugar bowl off another customer's belfry. A third customer lay on the floor bleeding, and the other three disappeared rapidly through the door. While one of the waiters was cleaning up the mess made by the affair he did a little soliloquy. "Ain't it the limit?" he was heard to say. "First, I'm on the Strath Haven a perfectly good cook, and along comes a torpedo boat off Heligoland and punctures us. Result, a trip to Germany I didn't want. Next I starts home on the Green Briar, again doing my best as a cook, and we're blown up off Kirkwall. And here I am looking for a quiet place—and see what I get into."—New York Times.

SYSTEMATIC PLAY.

"Why won't you let your child play with my child? Ain't my child good enough to play with yours?"

"Plenty good enough, my dear madam. But my child plays exclusively under the Montessori system, while your child appears to play at random, so to speak; at least under no system that I have been able to identify."

TOO MUCH GAS.

"Yes. I had to quit going to the club on account of it."—Judge.

Those Bad Spells.

Labanon Jet, Ky.—Mrs. Minnie Kumb, of this place, says: "I believe I would have been dead by now, had it not been for Cardui. I haven't had one of those bad spells since I commenced to use this medicine." Cardui is a specific medicine for the ills from which women suffer. Made from harmless, vegetable ingredients Cardui is a safe, reliable remedy, and has been successfully used by weak and ailing women for more than fifty years. Thousands of women have been helped back to health and happiness by its use. Why not profit by their experience? A trial will convince you that Cardui is just what you need.—Advertise ment.

KNEW HOW TO HANDLE MULES

Drivers in the Civil War Had Their Own Methods, and They Were Eminently Successful.

The wagons were generally drawn by four mules driven by negroes, who rode the high wheeler and managed the team by a jerk line to the high leader. In these days it may seem like a shiftless way to drive a team, but it worked well, and possibly because the darkies and the mules, through some medium or other, understood each other perfectly; at any rate the drivers talked to their teams as if they comprehended every word said to them. And sometimes it was worth listening to, when the roads were bad and some of the wagons ahead of them were stuck in the mud. "Calline" (Caroline, the high leader), giving her an awakening jerk of the line, "stop dreamin' with dem y'ears of yours." "Jer'miah" (Jeremiah, the off-wheeler), "you'll think the insex is bit'n you if you don't put dem sholdahs agin dat collah." "Dan'l" (Daniel, the wheeler he is on), giving him a sharp dig in the ribs with his boot heels, the road getting heavier every minute, "no foolin', you old hahdened sinnah!" "Member, Mrs. N'nias" (Mrs. Ananias, off leader), reaching for her left hip with the tip of his black snake, "if dis yere wagon sticks in dat hole ahead o' you, you'll wish you'r down in dat grave 'longside dat lie'n husband o' yours." And, on reaching the worst place in the road, yelling "Yeh! Yeh!" loud enough to be heard half way from Washington to Baltimore, every prophet and lady mule in the team knew what to expect if the wagon stuck, and generally the faithful creatures pulled it through.—Morris Schaff, in the Atlantic.

MAY DRAW HEAT FROM EARTH

Scientists Have Seriously Proposed Deep Borings by Means of Which It Can Be Obtained.

As we go downward into the earth we find a steady increase of temperature. So marked is this increase that it has been seriously proposed to make very deep borings in order to obtain supplies of warm water for heating our towns.

Arago and Walferdin suggested this method for supplying warmth to the Jardin des Plantes in Paris; and now that such important improvements have been made in carrying borings to enormous depths the time may not be far distant when we shall draw extensively upon these supplies of "submarine" heat.

The city of Budapest is extensively supplied with hot water from an underground source. It may be well to remember that in the event of our coal supply failing we have these inexhaustible supplies of heat everywhere beneath our feet.

Invitation to Enter.

"The latch string hangs out," signifies hospitality and is a standing invitation for a person to visit. In early times Indiana pioneers lived in log cabins built of round logs, notched near the ends, to make them lie closely together. Openings for doors and windows were made by sawing out holes after the logs were laid. The doors were of puncheons or rough slabs fastened together with wooden pins. Nails were expensive and little used. The door latch was a wooden catch or kind of trigger which, when the door was closed, fell into a little groove and could be opened from the outside by pulling a string, one end of which was fastened to the latch and the other, passing through a hole in the door above the latch, hung outside, so the latch could be raised by pulling the string. To lock the door the string was pulled inside. Hence the expression, "the latch string hangs outside," meant an invitation to come in.

How Habits Affect Sleep.

Habits play an important part in our daily life—habits, for instance, of drumming, tapping the foot, sniffing, pulling the whisker, "pushing the face," pulling out the watch every few minutes and scratching to relieve an itch.

The latter, say nerve specialists, is among those most difficult to conquer. If we can restrain the desire to scratch every time we feel an itching sensation we shall have made a distinct advance in control of our nerves, and we will find that in a short time the itching itself will lessen.

Science has lately discovered that if a person masters these habits, which tend to nervous breakdown, he will acquire the power of whatever position he assumes, and will find himself falling asleep in a quarter of the accustomed time. He will feel more energetic the next day and perform his work better.

Agnostic Squeaked.

Rev. Dr. A. C. Dixon, the American preacher filling Spurgeon's famous pulpit in London's Metropolitan tabernacle, quoted Spurgeon, in his part of that new symposium book, "What Happens After Death?" in this happy fashion: Spurgeon was quoting an English pastor who had preached on the immortality of the soul, and who was approached by one of his parishioners who told him that he did not believe in such teaching. "There is no difference," this parishioner said, "between the man and the dog." "Well," replied the preacher, "I really thought that I was furnishing food for people who had souls; if I had known that there was a dog among them I would have brought bones for him."
